Going green in Amsterdam Meet, move, eat and sleep environmental friendly!

A full green day in Amsterdam
Green meetings are a growing topic in business these days. Everyday more companies are stressing the importance of going green. All the more reason to plan your meeting in Amsterdam as there are plenty of green possibilities. Meet, move, eat and stay green in the capital of the Netherlands!

Let us take you through a green day in Amsterdam. To start, there are several hotels in Amsterdam that have been rewarded with the golden 'green key'. Of course a stay in one of these hotels should be part of a green stay. The RAI Convention Centre also has a green key. This is a perfect location to organise your green meeting. The RAI is constantly looking for more sustainable alternatives for their products and services.
After the meeting you can chose an ecological transport back to the hotel or restaurant: The bicycle taxi or canal hoppers are just 2 examples.

The canal hopper is 'a silent sailor' as it works on electricity. Amsterdam even offers a canal boat that sails on hydrogen with a fuel cell. You could finish your day in one of the biological restaurants in town, for example 'De Kas' which in English means the greenhouse. This restaurant serves one fresh daily menu, which is based on the harvest of the day. After this special dinner, you will be taken back to your 'green key' hotel again.
